

Gardening

By Miranda MacKenzie

West Elementary School, Great Falls, MT

Gardening to me...it makes me feel great! Now you're probably wondering why, so.....I'll tell you. Gardening makes people happier, helps the environment, and it's eco-friendly.

Now I'll tell you this....growing fresh food makes me happier and feel closer to nature. Since I've started gardening been thinking about other ways to help the Earth.

You're probably wondering why is it important? Growing seeds is important to me because I feel closer like I'm helping the Earth. Gardening helps the community by getting fresher produce to eat especially at home and in school.

So, to sum it all up, gardening keeps me thinking green, makes the community happier, and gets fresh produce that tastes great and is a lot healthier than food imported from other states, oh, and did I mention, it's fun!

